Low and No Code Frontends

Quite often it is useful to have ugly-but-functional frontends for accessing things like databases and carrying out user management. Recently commercial tools like Retool have made it really easy to build this kind of thing by providing drag-and-drop UI builders that are reminiscent of the Visual Studio tooling that we had in the late 90s and early 00s.

Appsmith

Appsmith is a FOSS low-code app builder. IT can connect with a variety of data sources and apps can be exported to git
